SUMMARY

My passion for technology has led me into two relationship areas. My desire to understand the market, economics is a path that I have chosen which allows me to understand how it works. Even if with the time invested on this path, the dedication of evenings and weekends to feed my technological passion, software development is a path that has allowed me to learn the analysis, design and development of applications and software. These iterative journeys allow me to evolve according to the budget and the needs of the market to offer quality solutions with the desire to learn from different experiences through adventures and challenges.
